The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 1,3,4,12,13 are objected to because of the following informalities: in new claim 1 "of a surface the SOI" should be amended for proper English. The term "mixedly incorporating" is also awkward English language. Appropriate correction is required.

Claims 1,3,4,12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Linthicum 6,255,198 of record.

The previous rejection still applies. The new limitations do not add patentable subject matter to the claims. The terms "locally located", "optical", etc. do not structurally distinguish over Linthicum who likewise shows a "locally located" "optical" device of GaN material on SiC on Si substrate. There are no exact dimensions or structure associated with "locally located" to distinguish over Linthicum.

Claims 1,3,4,12,13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamamoto in view of Linthicum, of record.

The previous rejection with the above remarks applies.

Applicant's arguments filed 7/23/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Arguments regarding no combination of optical and electronic devices on the same substrate in Linthicum are unconvincing. First, there are no particular device structures claimed and therefore no distinguishing device structure over the applied art. The silicon and gallium nitride layers themselves broadly define layers of device structure in Linthicum. Moreover, it is implicit in Linthicum specific device structure is to be formed in both silicon and GaN device layers. See column 5 lines 5-44. The labels "electronic device" and "optical device" do not structurally distinguish over Linthicum where, for example, column 13 lines 45-65 disclose electronic devices "CMOS" combined with optical devices "gallium nitride lasers and/or LEDs".

Arguments regarding Yamamoto are also unconvincing. The product by process arguments are unconvincing as the final product does not structurally distinguish over the applied art. See the previously recited caselaw. Applicant alleges there is different structure associated with the different processes, however, no particular different structure is claimed and no concrete evidence shown to prove different structure.

The rejection states SOI structure from Linthicum would be obvious for a Yamamoto type structure to provide the benefits of SOI, for example, lower capacitance and better device isolation. There is no evidence to the contrary.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
